BioSIPs, Inc. Corporate Headquarters and Manufacturing Facility
By Erik Thomas Jorgensen

Environmental Architecture Studio 4710
Professor of Architecture; Licensed Architect Julee Herdt

The initial concept evolved from the idea of peeling the landscape up, situating the factory beneath and integrating the structure with its site while incorporating a green roof and natural lighting into the design. The structure overhanging the train tracks creates a loading/unloading bay for controlled handling of goods.