New course in social justice!

SJUS 2010

Social Justice: Theories, Narratives, Technologies

TR 1130-1245 p.m.

Professor Cate Wiley, Department of English

With guest lectures from professors in Philosophy, History, Religion, and Communications

Readings in Chicana fiction, the Gospels, American slave narratives, Canadian science fiction, labor history, Plato, African American poetry, media studies and more!

Theme: How can we as citizens in a wealthy democracy contribute to advancing social justice and environmental sustainability? While we have the conditions for economic opportunity here in the U.S., can we learn to self-regulate our own passions for good of the whole?

If such questions intrigue you, check out this course and the new minor in Social Justice. SJUS 2010 counts toward the introductory requirement for the 18-credit hour minor.
