Psychoeducational Testing

Student Mental Health
Anschutz Medical Campus
(303) 724-4716
smhservice@ucdenver.edu
Bldg 500, #E2343

Student Mental Health offers psychological assessments. You might consider this if you believe you have ADHD or a learning disorder such as in reading, mathematics, or writing. You may seek documentation of a specific learning disability in order to receive appropriate accommodations or may already have such documentation but are required to give updated testing. An assessment can also focus on personality and emotional functioning which can help you understand how you think, feel, and behave. Testing provides individualized recommendations and differential diagnosis, such as distinguishing between ADHD and a mood disorder.

An assessment involves the following steps:
- An interview
- One-on-one testing (around 3-6 hours for cognitive testing, around 2-5 hours for personality testing)
- Consultation with and/or questionnaires completed by important others in your life
- A one hour feedback session along with a written report (with around 2 hours spent on writing and interpreting) describing the testing, conclusions, and treatment recommendations

Fees:
*Please check with your insurance to determine coverage for psychological testing and if a prior authorization is needed. It is common for insurance to exclude coverage for learning disability testing.

Out-of-pocket rate: $80/hr

Robert Rosenthal, Psy.D. // Assistant Clinical Professor
University of Colorado // Dept. of Psychiatry
13001 E 17th Pl., Building 500, E2342B, Aurora, CO, 80045
Tel: 303-724-9637