SIXTEENTH BIENNIAL
DEVELOPMENTAL PSYCHOBIOLOGY RESEARCH GROUP
RETREAT

May 3 – May 4, 2010

TABLE MOUNTAIN INN
GOLDEN, COLORADO

THEME:
The Effects of Perinatal Stress on Child Outcomes: Directions for Future Prevention and Intervention

The Sixteenth Biennial DPRG Retreat will be held May 3-4, 2010 at the Table Mountain Inn. There will be a limited number of seats, so early registration is recommended. The three invited outside speakers and titles of their talks are:

Michael Meaney, Ph.D.  Maternal regulation of gene expression and neurodevelopment through epigenetic mechanisms.

Zachary Stowe, M.D.   Perinatal Maternal Depression and Treatment: Transgenerational Effects

Thomas O’Connor, Ph.D. Prenatal anxiety and child development: testing programming models on human development

Arthur Jones, Ph.D.   The Spirituals as a Community Response to Stress

In addition to presentations by the outside speakers, we will have three University of Colorado Faculty members as discussants and panel members: Diego Restrepo, Ph.D.; Robert Freedman, M.D.; Robert Emde, M.D.

This retreat will focus on a new format intended to integrate three levels of research including basic science; primary translational, or “bench to bedside;” and secondary translational, or “bedside to community.” Each outside speaker will present a paper related to the theme of the conference. Some submitted abstracts will be selected to present a “data blitz” following each speaker. A group discussion mediated by the faculty discussants will follow. Both this year's and previous year's speakers will be available for discussions and networking.

The Table Mountain Inn (http://www.tablemountaininn.com/) will provide a lovely and informal setting for our meeting. An assortment of group events have been planned to increase the opportunities for intellectual and social interaction among participants. The Table Mountain Inn is renowned for exceptional accommodations as well as fabulous southwestern cuisine. Our activities will include: a welcoming continental breakfast, lunch, group picture, wine and cheese reception, and an evening banquet. Golden, Colorado is beautiful and offers exceptional hikes and other recreational activities for before and after the retreat.

The retreat is organized to advance research among Developmental Psychobiology Research Group members, post doctoral fellows and regular attendees. However, it is open to faculty, graduate students, post-graduate trainees, and undergraduate students at all University of Colorado campuses, the University of Denver, Colorado State University, the National Jewish Medical & Research Center, the Children's Hospital, as well as other institutions if room allows. Participation in the retreat is a good way to begin, renew, or continue involvement with the DPRG.

Awards will be made for the best Junior Faculty submission (Senior Instructor or Assistant Professor) as well as for the best Trainee abstract (Undergraduate or graduate student, Post Doctoral Fellow, or Resident). In addition to our recognition, winners will receive a voucher for $50 to be used toward a future DPRG retreat. Winners will be announced at lunch on May 4, 2010.
