We, the Class of 2020, pledge to uphold the following principles:

As INDIVIDUALS, we pledge to conduct ourselves with honesty, humility, and conscientiousness. In seeking constant growth as physicians and human beings, we will strive to maintain our own physical, emotional, and mental well-being.

As PEERS, we pledge to foster a community that is collaborative, accountable, supportive, and innovative. We promise to learn from our differences and unique perspectives, to seek and offer refuge to one another during hardship, and to rejoice together in times of triumph.

As STUDENTS, we pledge to honor the University's commitment to us through active engagement in the classroom, the laboratory, and clinical settings. We will continually look for opportunities to improve our program for future students and strive to proudly represent this institution.

As PHYSICIANS, we pledge to deliver evidence-based care with compassion and purpose. We will embrace our role as patient advocates and commit to preserving their trust, dignity, and agency. We will devote ourselves to building our cultural proficiency and to learning more about our patients' challenges and backgrounds.

As LEADERS, we pledge to improve our communities by investigating and addressing their specific needs. Through service, advocacy, and education, we will raise awareness of institutional biases, alleviate health disparities, and practice socially just medicine.

As STEWARDS OF OUR PROFESSION, we pledge to act ethically and to lead by example. We will work diligently to advance the field of medicine by upholding a standard of excellence, whether in scientific research or clinical practice, and by guiding the next generation of physicians.

We take this oath freely and upon our honor. May it serve not merely as a symbol of our aspirations as students but as a constant reminder of our commitment to medicine throughout our careers.
