Serving Children with Infectious Disease

Heather Heizer, a 2008 CHA/PA graduate, has had an interest in healthcare as long as she can remember. Her sister was diagnosed with Type I diabetes as an infant and her mother is a nurse, so she understood the importance of quality healthcare even as a young child. Before joining PA school, Heather spent several years as a lab researcher at National Jewish.

The Silver Society in Action

Silver Society has had a busy year! Since last summer, Silver Society leadership planned events in both community service and diversity/recruitment. Students participated together in activities such as Children's Hospital holiday craft-making, Food Bank volunteering, speaking at local Health working on projects associated with tuberculosis and staphylococcus. While enjoying her research experience, Heather ultimately felt drawn to a profession with more human interaction and set her sights on PA school. Since graduation, Heather has worked at The Children’s Hospital Colorado in the Department of Pediatric Infectious Diseases. She has always had a passion for microbiology so this field, coupled with her love for working with children, is a perfect fit. The patients she sees most commonly have fevers of unknown origin, osteomyelitis, brain abscesses, fever in the return traveler, post exposure prophylaxis, and a variety of other infectious etiologies. She also precepts CHA/PA students and finds that teaching keeps her current as well as strengthens her skills. “I try to teach the students to enjoy the journey, to have fun, and to make the most out of any learning experience they are in because ultimately, the experience is what you choose to make it.”

The field of infectious disease also presents its challenges. Heather works with victims of sexual assault soon after the exposure. While difficult, she feels this gives her the opportunity to “offer kindness, compassion, and some hope in extremely horrible circumstances.” Additionally, she sees children who are terminally ill or in a later stage of their disease. Her goal with these young patients is to provide some joy and laughter while sharing a painful journey. Heather finds that children are so resilient and uninhibited, and despite the demands, she feels honored to serve this population. Ultimately, Heather can sum up her love of schools to educate about PAs, and serving at race events. During our meetings, we were able to hear from the President of CAPA (Colorado Academy of Physician Assistants) as well as a panel of 3rd year students offering advice for the clinical year. This Spring, Silver Society members attended the CAPA conference in Copper Mountain, CO and held a silent auction. Proceeds went to Camp Wapiyapi, a camp for children with cancer and their families. Also at the conference, Candace Bassett won the CAPA scholarship for PA students! Monthly meetings hosted a Neurosurgery PA from UCH and a panel of current practicing PAs. This year, Silver Society was given the Excellence Award for Community Service for a Student Organization from the Anschutz Senate. Most recently, Silver Society’s AOR representative, Chris Whitcomb, attended the AAPA conference where he was elected Western Regional Director of SAAAPA. The organization cannot wait to welcome its new members in the coming weeks!

working with patients and their families through her favorite Emerson quote: “To laugh often and much; To win the respect of intelligent people and the affection of children; To earn the appreciation of honest critics and endure the betrayal of false friends; To appreciate beauty, to find the best in others; To leave the world a bit better, whether by a healthy child, a garden patch, or a redeemed social condition; To know even one life has breathed easier because you have lived. This is to have succeeded.”

Anschutz join together to host a memorial service in honor of those who donated their bodies to the anatomy department. Speakers from all programs were given opportunities to address the crowd of family members, friends, and classmates. As the representative of the CHAPA class of 2018, I was honored to speak and share my experiences.

Anatomy is a pivotal moment in the life of the first year PA student. From reeking of formaldehyde to spending countless hours drawing and redrawing innervations, anatomy permeates the months of June, July, and August. It is a hauntingly beautiful juxtaposition: the infamous Colorado sunshine blasts the windows of the 5th floor anatomy lab, breathing life into the stainless steel humidors. I constantly found myself pausing to appreciate this unique and humbling experience.

As I walked up to the podium to speak at the memorial ceremony, I wanted nothing more than to convey my gratitude: for the lives of those who so generously donated their bodies, to the families and friends for honoring wishes they might not have chosen for themselves, and to the program who entrusted us with this delicate knowledge. The experience was extremely touching and beautiful and I rediscovered one of life’s simple truths: it is in the remembrance of life and death that we find ourselves inextricably bound to one another.

AAPA Conference

Myself along with nine other third year students were fortunate enough to be able to attend the 2016 AAPA Conference in the vibrant and historical city of San Antonio, Texas. The conference kicked off with a bang as we listened to Kevin Lacz, PA-C, former Navy SEAL, and movie consultant for American Sniper, give a motivational talk encouraging PAs to be the leaders in healthcare. The excitement for us did not end there, as we were able to attend a wide array of sessions that solidified our passions and eagerness to join the PA profession. Throughout our stay we were able to connect and network with numerous PAs who gave us wisdom and advice to help us navigate our new roles as practicing PAs. During our free time we were able to enjoy the beautiful city and experience San Antonio staples such as the River Walk, The Pearl District and of course The Alamo. This trip was a wonderful way to celebrate the end of PA school as well as solidify our love and excitement for the PA profession that we will soon be joining. We are very grateful for this wonderful opportunity and are thankful for the support of CHA/PA Faculty and the Office of Inclusion and Outreach that made this trip possible.

Learning about Hospice Care

During my 3rd year I spent 2 weeks at Collier Hospice Center where I learned a lot about pain management and how the hospice system works. I was already a hospice supporter, but now know first hand how wonderful hospice can be as a way for patients and their families to face death with comfort and love surrounding them. I feel it is so important that people have the option to spend their last days pain free and surrounded by their families and friends, either at home or in a hospice facility with loving and understanding medical staff. I found this to be a very valuable rotation for me as I plan to go into primary care, as I now understand how important it is to encourage patients to think about putting together their will and think about how they would like their final days to be spent, especially while they are still of sound mind.
