Behavioral Science in Health and Health Care
An ACCORDS Seminar Series

Danielle Loeb, MD, MPH
Associate Professor, Medicine-Internal Medicine
Dr. Loeb is practicing general internist at University of Colorado School of Medicine and a fellowship-trained Dissemination and Implementation researcher. Her research focuses on improving care for complex patients with mental illness in a team-based model of care with a specific focus on the integration of PCPs within the healthcare team. She has performed both qualitative and quantitative research on the treatment of complex patients in primary care.

Bethany Kwan, PhD, MSPH
Investigator & Education Program Director, ACCORDS
Assistant Professor, Family Medicine
Dr. Kwan is a social health psychologist and dissemination and implementation scientist in ACCORDS, where she studies theory-based approaches to chronic disease management and prevention in health care settings.

“Behavioral Health in Practice: How to Implement Change in the Clinic”

Lunch will be provided to the first 30 participants. No registration required.
