

APPROVED

MAY 17 2011

COMIRB

Research Study: "Acupuncture for Fatigue in Parkinson's Disease"

COMIRB #10-0533, Approved 6/3/11

Benzi Kluger, M.D.

Research Study Description: Fatigue has a major effect on quality of life and is the leading cause of disability. Fatigue is notoriously difficult to treat and there are no proven interventions. This study will determine the effect of acupuncture on fatigue, mood, motor severity and quality of life in PD.

Seeking patients with Parkinson's Disease who are:

1. Age 40 or over
2. Stable on medications for at least 30 days
3. Not experiencing dementia
4. Highly fatigued.

Research Coordinator:

Etta Abaca

303-724-2193 or

ETTA.Abaca@ucdenver.edu