

GAME READY

What makes the GAME READY unit different from regular Cold Therapy?

RICE (Rest, Ice, Compression, Elevation) has long been used to treat acute and chronic injury and assist in orthopedic surgery rehabilitation. While the Kodiak provides the ice the GAME READY provides the cold therapy and the compression component. Cold therapy will help control pain and swelling it will not decrease swelling. The compression component on the GAME READY will decrease swelling.

How do the Wraps or Pads compare to the cold therapy pads?

The GAME READY wraps are anatomically designed for each body part. The compression component inflates the pad which conforms the wrap to the contours of the body for more efficient delivery of cold therapy.

Can I control the compression and temperature?

Compression and temperature settings can be adjusted on the control unit.

The GAME READY sounds more complicated.

The GAME READY, while not as easy to use as the KODIAK, is very easy to use. Also, an accredited representative will meet with you when the unit is dropped off at your home, office or surgery center to instruct you on its use.

How much does it cost?

The GAME READY units are rental units only. The patient rents the units for 9 days. We will bill your insurance company. If your insurance company denies the unit as a necessary part of your procedure, you will be billed the discounted patient pay rate of $170.00. This price includes delivery and setup.
