K-12 Outreach Newsletter

Undergraduate Admissions & K-12 Outreach
UNIVERSITY OF COLORADO DENVER

The University of Colorado Denver K-12 Outreach program is here to help every student on the pathway to a college education.

August 20th officially marked the start of the Fall 2018 semester. New students have been exploring campus and returning students are jumping back into their course work after summer break.

The K-12 Outreach team is excited for the new opportunities coming up including campus visits, college and career fairs, financial wellness workshops, targeted outreach events and concurrent enrollment.

One of our new focuses for the 2018-2019 calendar year is connecting K-12 students with academic units in a meaningful way. Specifically, we have begun to organize more targeted visits featuring each of CU Denver's outstanding schools and colleges.

Stay tuned for more information about opportunities to connect with our College of Architecture and Planning, College of Arts and Media, Business School, School of Education & Human Development, College of Engineering and Applied Sciences, College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, and School of Public Affairs. Each visit day will feature a welcome presentation, hands on activities, campus tour and lunch!

Youth participants from Project VOYCE present their ideas for tackling issues facing today's society. Project VOYCE develops transformational leaders in underrepresented communities by training, employing, and organizing youth to address root causes of inequity. The K-12 Outreach team hosted Project VOYCE for a 5-week summer camp.

Summer Highlights:

- 24 student leaders participated in this summer's Project VOYCE camp, hosted by CU Denver K-12 Outreach.
- K-12 Outreach's partnership with Galvanize and the CU Denver Business School has produced the first graduate and is recruiting additional students now!
- Hosted 7 one-week coding camps for K-12 students focusing on topics such as: JavaScript, robotics, game design, Minecraft and drones.
- Financial Wellness workshops took place throughout summer
- This summer 11 high school students took classes on campus through concurrent enrollment.
