THIS GUIDE PROVIDES BASIC INFORMATION ABOUT SCHOLARSHIPS AND FINANCIAL AID.

It answers common questions asked by students, and offers guidance in both the federal financial aid and scholarship application processes.

In this guide, you will find a listing of internal scholarships offered by the University of Colorado Denver and a website guiding you to other scholarship opportunities. Keep in mind that scholarships are available to many students, not just students with a high GPA or high ACT/SAT scores.

Eligibility criteria vary by scholarship. Some scholarships look for merit (grades and/or test scores), while other scholarships focus on financial need (either through the federal FAFSA report or self-reported). Some are looking for outside extracurricular effort that can include paid work or volunteer activities. Most will look for some combination of these factors. The scholarship search takes time, commitment, and hard work to be successful. Utilize the information provided here and on the website to create a greater understanding of the application process.

SCHOLARSHIPS ARE COMPETITIVE AWARDS

Offered by a variety of sources. In order to be eligible for a particular scholarship, you must meet all eligibility criteria and turn in the application by the deadline.

There are scholarships that are internal to the university as well as those that are external. CU Denver offers internal scholarships that are department-specific as well as general scholarships for students in any discipline. In addition to the Scholarship Resource Office, your major or minor department is a good source of information.

External scholarships are awarded by organizations outside of the university such as: businesses, corporations, civic and social clubs, churches, and individuals.

For information on internal and external scholarships, utilize our website, contact the Scholarship Resource Office, or research the department/organization offering the scholarship.

How do I learn what my award is?

Financial aid may include grants, scholarships, loans and work-study funds. Accepted aid can be used to help meet your educational costs and different programs will require additional steps. Grants and scholarships are considered gift aid and do not have to be paid back. Loans are funds that you borrow and repay and will include interest accrued. Work-study is money you earn from working. Work-study is disbursed to the student as funds are earned and not applied to the students University bill. The Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) must be completed annually to determine eligibility for aid. Most students who complete a FAFSA are eligible for some type of financial aid.

You must apply for financial aid every year. We cannot process your financial aid application until you are officially admitted, so apply for admission early.

How is my financial aid award determined?

The Cost of Attendance is determined by a survey of regional and local costs and includes tuition, fees, books, room and board, insurance and travel. Your eligibility for financial aid is based on the following formula:

\text{Cost of Attendance} - \frac{\text{Expected Family Contribution (from FAFSA)}}{\text{Financial Need}}

The Expected Family Contribution (EFC) is determined by the federal government through an analysis of the information reported on your FAFSA. The lower your EFC, the greater your financial need. Financial need is the gap between the cost of attending school and your resources. Financial aid will help fill this gap. Loans can be used to replace the EFC. All financial aid received aid cannot exceed the cost of attendance. Your cost of attendance may be adjusted based on your actual enrollment status. Please contact the Financial Aid Office for more information.

How do I apply for financial aid?

- Apply for a personal identification number (PIN) at: (www.pin.ed.gov)
- Complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) at: www.fafsa.ed.gov as soon as possible after January 1st. The FAFSA assesses your eligibility for grants, loans, work-study, and some scholarships.

CU Denver school code: 004508

- Colorado resident, undergraduate students are eligible for the Colorado Opportunity Fund (COF) stipend from the State of Colorado to help pay their tuition. Apply at: https://cof.college-assist.org

What is the deadline for applying?

The priority deadline for CU Denver is April 1st in order to be considered for scholarships.

Where/when do I get my money?

Aid is applied to your bill approximately one week before classes start. If there is a credit balance on your bill, the refund amount is deposited electronically into your bank account if you have completed a Direct Deposit Form (www.ucdenver.edu/finaid). For students without a direct deposit account, the Bursar’s Office will send paper checks out every other Wednesday.

Scholarships and Financial Aid

Scholarships are a form of financial aid and these funds may affect your financial aid because in some cases you are limited in the amount of aid you can receive. If you receive a scholarship in addition to your financial aid and it goes over your “unmet financial need,” your award must be adjusted. Notify the Scholarship Resource Office of any scholarships that you will be receiving so we can make the necessary adjustments. Money is deducted from your loans before it is taken from your grants or work-study to balance out the “need.”

Adjustments to My Financial Aid

Initial aid awards are based on full-time enrollment. If you are enrolled less than full time, or receive a scholarship, your aid may be impacted. An email will notify you to go to the UCDAccess Portal where you can view the revised financial information, with the adjustments.

What else is required?

In order to remain eligible for financial aid, students must make satisfactory academic progress toward their degree. Satisfactory Academic Progress is a federal requirement and is measured by GPA, course completion rate and program completion rate. Please review our policy at:

Tax Credits

You may be eligible for educational tax credits. Consult your tax advisor regarding the Hope Scholarship and the Lifetime Learning Tax Credit. Additional information:

SCHOLARSHIP APPLICATION PROCESS

Scholarship applications vary, but usually have one or more of these general components, and may be a combination of these:

- Academic merit – grades, test scores
- Financial need – this need may be defined differently than by the FAFSA guidelines
- Community service and work history
- Preferences such as:
  - gender
  - first generation
  (neither parent has a four year degree)
  - race and ethnic identity
  - community involvement
  - major or minor degree program
  - age
  - special talents and hobbies
  - memberships in organizations

Available Resources

- School guides or websites – provide scholarship information internal and external to the school
- Scholarship search sites – give students access to regional and national scholarships based on a personal profile. CU Denver has scholarship lists based on the University's majors and student population.
- Scholarship databases – schools, libraries and organizations compile databases that list regional, national and international scholarships, fellowships and grants. Databases are the largest source of information about scholarships, offering resources to students with a broad range of qualifications.
- Libraries – have grant, scholarship and financial aid reference books, and databases
- Organizations – civil, community, businesses or religious organizations to which you or your family belong

How do I apply for scholarships?

CU Denver utilizes an on-line application for all University Scholarships. This can be accessed via the UCDAccess Portal, with a March 1 deadline.

Other scholarship applications are typically available 6 to 8 weeks before the deadline. The application process should take place anywhere from a semester to a year prior to the academic year/semester you hope to receive the money.

Each scholarship has a different process. Generally you must fill out an application form or apply online, provide biographical information and references, supply financial aid information (if requested), and write an essay. The essay topics vary, but are a critical part of the application. This is your chance to set yourself apart from the other candidates.

Keep a copy of any scholarship application paperwork to utilize in the ongoing application process such as:

- Any essays you write, including an educational goal statement
- Income tax forms
- Information from the Financial Aid Office, such as the Student Aid Report (SAR) and award letters
- College and/or high school transcripts
- Your resume
- Letters of recommendation

Helpful Hints

Make sure you are familiar with the scholarship process of each university or college as they can vary, even within departments.

Read and follow the scholarship applications carefully. Type or neatly print the applications.

Scholarship awards vary in amount from $50 to thousands of dollars. The most common scholarship amount is $500 on a one-time basis.

You should have other financial resources lined up to pay for your educational costs, but are usually allowed to receive more than one scholarship at a time.

Although the application process may require a lot of time and effort in the beginning, most of the information can be utilized on additional scholarship applications.

Keep a timeline or calendar with important dates and deadlines with information such as admission applications, financial aid and scholarships (download a blank copy of a scholarship calendar from the scholarship website). Important information to include on the calendar:

- Scholarship name
- Application deadline - most scholarships are due Dec-May
- Begin application six weeks before due date
- Required elements, if applicable
  - application
  - references
  - essay
  - transcripts
- Specific notes on the scholarship
