

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

CU Denver has the only Bachelor of Fine Arts (BFA) degree program in film and television in Colorado that is designed to give students the foundations to succeed in the film and television industries. Students will learn experientially how to conceptualize, write, produce, and edit a wide variety of film and television projects. Students will perform all the key production tasks as writers, producers, directors, cinematographers, editors, and production personnel. The program explores hands-on techniques as well as ideas and theories that are critical to the creative process.

Another hallmark of the program is its focus on professional mentorship, which provides students with actual working experiences that easily transfer to industry credits beyond their degree. Students will have the experience of screening their work at our bi-annual student film festival entitled Cinefest. Our students likewise benefit from a state-of-the-art equipment base, including 4K cameras and professional, non-linear editing software. Further, they will be involved in the creation of our annual narrative web series that will be distributed via the Internet.

While many film programs train students to work in the feature film industry, they often overlook the television industry and its vast opportunities. Our graduates will not only have a skill set that encompasses the film industry, but also a comprehensive understanding of the entire television industry.

SAMPLE ACADEMIC PLAN OF STUDY

The following academic plan is a sample pathway to completing degree requirements for this major. The plan below is intended for first-time, First-Year students.
