

CU Denver Global and Domestic Programs – Deposit Information

- If a student is accepted to the program for which they have applied, they will receive written notification from the Office of Global Education, and they will be asked to commit to the program by submitting a non-refundable $400 deposit. Instructions for paying the deposit will be provided at the time of acceptance.
- Prior to paying the deposit, students should confirm all funding sources and their ability to cover the full program cost and associated travel expenses, such as airfare, passport and visa fees (if applicable), meals, etc. Students should not rely on scholarships for which decisions have not been announced.
 - If a student plans to use financial aid to help fund their global or domestic education program, they are strongly encouraged to schedule an appointment with a Financial Aid advisor prior to submitting the non-refundable deposit.
 - Summer programs will be billed during the Summer term. Winter programs will be billed during the Spring term.
- By paying the non-refundable deposit, a student assumes responsibility for paying the full program charge unless the Office of Global Education receives a written withdrawal notification within five (5) calendar days.
- The deposit will be applied toward the full program charge.
- If a student decides not to participate at any time after paying the non-refundable deposit, this constitutes a withdrawal from the program. The student must notify the Office of Global Education in writing of their withdrawal.
 - Not enrolling in/dropping the associated course in the CU Denver portal system is not an official withdrawal. Students must notify the Office of Global Education directly.
 - If a student withdraws, the deposit will not be returned.
 - When the student withdraws from the program, they may be responsible for the full program charge (per the withdrawal terms outlined in the Withdrawal Policy), that will be billed to the student account.
 - Review your program's Withdrawal Policy that you must sign during the application process for more information about financial consequences of withdrawals.
- Some programs may require an additional housing deposit. This deposit will be collected directly from the student by the organization or landlord responsible for the program housing. If no housing damages are incurred, the deposit will be returned to the student by the housing organization or landlord.
- If CU Denver cancels the program for any reason, students will receive a refund of the deposit.
- Before placing the program deposit, ensure the program is offering the credit / course you need. For example, if the course is only offering graduate level credit, an undergraduate section will not be available.
