Biography

Gillian Grant (She/Her) is a Program Manager at Trailhead Institute, providing programmatic support as needed for the Community Research Liaisons. In addition to this, Gillian also provides programmatic support for the Regional Health Connector program. Working with a variety of partners across public health, she contributes to the implementation, coordination, and evaluation of these programs.

Prior to joining Trailhead, Gillian worked at Caring for Colorado foundation supporting the implementation of a multi-million dollar statewide initiative focused on reproductive health equity. She has held a variety of roles throughout her career at a variety of settings, including nonprofits, health clinics, and state public health. She values the building of connections and relationships in public health between individuals, communities, and organizations. She earned her Master's in Public Health with a focus on Community and Behavioral Health in 2012.

Currently, Gillian is volunteering with the Denver CASA program as an advocate for youth who have been abused or neglected. When Gillian isn't working, you can find her enjoying the 300+ days of Colorado sunshine hiking with her golden retriever or at a park with friends. She also loves her family, coffee, French fries, hugs, and texting with emoji or gifs.
