1. Approval of Minutes:

David Kottenstette moved to approve the minutes from the December 7, 2015 regular meeting of the Faculty Advisory Committee to the Auraria Board. Rafael Sanchez seconded the motion. The motion carried unanimously.

2. Faculty Friends of Auraria Award:

The group looked at the criteria ideas provided by Zsuzsa and Rafael. They liked all of their ideas, but agreed that there should be examples of the type of tri-institutional involvement they are looking for out of the applicants/nominees. Rafael suggested that working with students should be a criteria, and he gave an example of his department working with students to create a desk top 3D printer. David said that the award should promote involvement with all institutions; it should bring people together. The group agreed.

Rafael asked about campus safety, and Barb responded that the police have been busy creating lots of safety initiatives, like the text a tip program and the community officers in many of the buildings. David suggested having the ACPD come to a future FACAB meeting and talk about all of that. Lincoln told the group that while watching some of the safety videos, he noticed that there are definite “hot zones” like the exit doors on the Cherry Creek building, as an example. He suggested possibly creating a set of really short videos or pod casts that speak specifically to these “hot zone” areas. David thought they could possibly post them to YouTube, so they are more accessible to students, faculty and staff.

David brought the focus back to the FFA award. The group consensus was that they liked the outlines that Zsuzsa and Rafael created, and they just needed to merge them into one and include examples. They will bring the final outline to their constituents, so people can begin to think about the award and they will have a better idea of what it's all about. Timberley asked if they should request a bio with submissions or if they should put page limits on anything but David thought that they should wait and see what they get for this first time around, then maybe add page limits if they find that many people are writing extremely lengthy submissions. The group agreed.

3. Spring Site Visits:

David said that he would love to have site visits as a part of their yearly agendas, so they are able to see all the progress happening around campus, and it would give them an opportunity to gather valuable information about the other institutions new buildings and projects as well. He asked the group what their priorities are this year. Barb told the group that there is plenty to see at the Library, as they have been progressing quickly over there. The group was also interested in seeing CU Denver's, Student Commons building. David added that sometimes he feels as if he doesn't "belong" in the other schools buildings, and he thinks that these tours will create a more "shared campus" mentality. Timberley suggested that they might invite SACAB to join them on some of their site visits and the group also thought this was a good idea. The group also decided that it would be a good idea to actually hold their meetings in the buildings that they wish to tour and visit. David brought up that he would be interested in learning more about the intention of the architecture as well. The group identified the Library, the MSU Denver Regency Fields, and the CU Denver Student Commons to visit first. Lincoln said that maybe next year they could plan off site visits, like some of the locations across Speer Blvd. The group liked that idea as well.

4. Tri-Institutional Partnership discussion:

Timberley told the group that some of the CU Denver faculty had asked her to bring up parking for faculty who have large vehicles or a lot of field equipment that they need to store somewhere. She gave an example of a program that is conducting bird population studies and they have two ATV's on a trailer, but they have nowhere on campus to park them. There are some departments that have mobile labs as well, and they are running into the same issues. Barb suggested that they work with their own facilities staff first. They should speak to the facilities person at their institutions, and then those folks could reach out to AHEC to see what is possible and how they can accommodate these types of vehicles. Barb explained that their respective institutions should be made aware of these issues first, and then they can work through the proper channels to try and get their issues resolved.

5. Updates (from Barb):

Barb gave the group some quick campus updates. She told the group that the library is coming along really well. They will do landscaping in April and they also plan to replace the roof. The lighting is not completed yet, but it is looking really good. The new entrance on the building is open now as well.

She shared that the Tivoli Quad project is also moving right along. They are on schedule and still plan to have CU Denver graduation there in May. After that, they will not be allowing events in that space for a while to make sure that the grass has an opportunity to take and the other landscaping gets completed.

The Tivoli coffee patio is about a month from completion, and it is looking great! There will be tables and chairs on the completed patio.

MSU Denver's AES building is also on schedule and they are in the design phase for the Wellness Center.

1. Approval of Minutes:

Timberley Roane moved to approve the minutes from the February 1, 2016 regular meeting of the Faculty Advisory Committee to the Auraria Board. Lincoln Phillips seconded the motion. The motion carried unanimously.

2. Site Visit to the Auraria Library:

The FACAB team visited the Auraria Library to discuss their renovations as well as some additional programming and student services that are being offered. Cindy Hashert, the Interim Director of the Auraria Library, was present to provide details.

A slide show was shown to the group that included information on:

- collaborative classrooms
- the expanded café area
- extended HR space and an event venue
- new software
- tutoring and writing center information
- the reserve-able discovery wall
- ask us stations
- check out go-pro (speedy, self-check out system)

David Kottenstette told the group that they should alert their faculty about all these updates in software, so they can provide the information to their students. He expressed the importance of sharing this information with their constituents.

Cindy told the group that they are hoping to active the outdoor spaces and revitalize the two courtyards as well. The group expressed their appreciation and gratitude for such a beautiful space that blends technology and the more traditional aspects of a library.

David asked if there will be archival displays and Raphael and Lincoln agreed that would be a great idea to bring in something special sometimes. Cindy said that while they don't have plans to have specific archives displayed at the moment, they have glass cases around the perimeter of the library that include lots of fun artifacts and collections, as well as particular walls dedicated to displaying library archives and other fun items of interest. She also mentioned highlighting special collections online. David wants information about how to best collaborate with the library and build bridges of communication and possibly even create fundraisers.

The group then toured the Library. They decided to postpone the FFA criteria discussion to the following meeting.

1. Introductions:

The group will be made up of the same members as 2015-2016 fiscal year, as listed above.

2. Approval of Minutes:

The minutes from the March 3rd and April 4th, 2016 were reviewed. Timberley moved to approve both sets of minutes. The motion carried unanimously.

3. Confirmation of Chair/Board Representative:

David recognized that, per FACAB bylaws, it was CU Denver's term to be FACAB chair and ABOD representative. Timberley made a recommendation and motion that Rafael Sanchez be this year's Chair and Board rep. The motion carried unanimously.

4. Semester Goals:

Rafael asked the group if they would like to continue to take tours of some of the campus buildings or spaces that they might not have seen last year. Zsuzsa asked if they could tour building/construction sites, and Barb replied that they could as long as they were able to coordinate with someone from their institutions to arrange the tour. Timberley mentioned that they are currently breaking ground on the Wellness Center and that North Classroom will start renovations soon as well. Zsuzsa told the group that she would find out about getting onto the AES building site.

Rafael brought up campus safety, stating that shootings are becoming more prevalent and asking if they could get additional training and possibly coordinate something with all three institutions. The issue of concealed carry was discussed. Chris and David explained that people are allowed to carry a concealed weapon on campus with the appropriate permit, and it must be hidden or concealed. No open carry on campus. Barb told the group that we have a robust emergency preparedness program that offers all sorts of trainings, from active shooter to general safety to severe weather. In addition, she explained that each department can set up a time to have them come to the office and go through some safety and emergency situations with everyone, or individuals can sign up for group style classes. Timberley asked if the Active Shooter training could be offered more often, stating that she has not been able to take it a few times, due to the classes filling up. Chris told the group that CCD has organized trainings with the Emergency Preparedness group on multiple occasions and they were all successful. Barb agreed to provide more information about who to contact regarding Emergency Preparedness.

Raphael brought up the tour that they took to the library last semester and wanted to discuss the possibility to partnering with all three institutions and the Auraria Library to create an innovation showcase or innovation center where students, faculty and staff could come together and build different displays and collections that could be enjoyed by all. David brought up the Denver Art Museum, saying that they do something similar. They have a studio where they provide tools or utensils needed to create something cool, related to their current showcase, and people can just go in and use it, hands on. Sometimes they have experts scheduled that will come in and talk or teach about that particular topic. He told the group that it is very engaging and creative. The group had some questions about who would organize and coordinate all these events at the library, so that is something to think about going forward with this initiative. Barb suggested that the group meet with Cindy Hashert, the Library's interim director as a jumping off point. The group thought that this would be a great way to get all three schools involved in something creative and engaging, and could create a sense of collective identity.

The group then discussed the FFA award that they had been working on last year. It was decided that Ariel would collect all submissions and distribute to the group for review and decisions. The group decided they would talk to their constituents and present the award information to their faculty senates as well.

David mentioned a complaint that he had caught wind of regarding the doors to the Café portion of the Auraria Library. The ADA button had not been installed, so folks with disabilities were unable to get into the Café area of the Library. Barb said that she would find out what was going on and let the group know.

Rafael wanted to talk to the group about creating and hosting an 1800's event, here on Historic 9th Street Park, where the campus and community could be invited to experience traveling back in time, via costumes, food, acting and entertainment. He thought that it would be a great idea to try and organize an event that could highlight the campus and get a lot of people involved. Chris mentioned that a couple student groups were already planning a similar event. David suggested that for the next meeting, they all come prepared with any items or ideas that they would like to work on this semester, they can be vetted then and decisions can be made regarding what they should focus on this year.

Barb wanted to share a little information regarding the work that has been done on the Conceptual Walkway project. She shared with the group that they had put together a team of people, including representatives from the City, DDP, DPAC, AHEC and others to begin to look at options as far as an interactive walkway goes. They have come up with a plan, that Barb shared with the group. It includes a three phase approach. Phase one being the “road diet”, creating a more pedestrian friendly area and a protected bike lane. Phase two would be creating and building the walkway itself. Phase three would include engaging the bridge with buildings, the river, and possible pavilions and other activities. David asked who was going to fund this project and Barb informed him that has not been decided yet. Some of the first phase might be able to be funded, at least in part by the city, but they are still considering all options. David then brought up Colfax and Lipan and said that intersection is in dire need of help, as pedestrians and cars seem to bottle neck there. Barb told the group that they already have a plan in place for that intersection and that work should begin there sometime in the early spring.

Due to time constraints, the group decided to finish up discussions at their next meeting.

1. Approval of Minutes:

The minutes from the November 7, 2016 were reviewed. David moved to approve the minutes. Chris seconded. The motion carried unanimously.

2. Innovation Pilot Project (Response from SACAB):

Lincoln told the members who were unable to be present at the SACAB meeting how it went and what was discussed. He said that SACAB seemed open minded about the project, but wanted a more solid proposal from FACAB before agreeing to help. However, they gave their tentative support of the idea. Rafael asked what exactly SACAB would be able to contribute, and Barb responded that they only have a small operating budget, but that they would possibly be able to contribute in other ways, like getting student groups involved and raising awareness through their Student Governments and organizations.

Rafael suggested that they go ahead and put together a proposal – something that is broad in scope, so it could be applied in many different ways. Timberley said that they might want to start out small, and see if student clubs would like to host events or activities in the space, and see what types of ideas they have. She also suggested making it accessible to as many students and groups as possible. Lincoln thought that maybe clubs could submit some sort of application form and go through a review process in order to use the space. He also pointed out that some faculty or staff oversight would be necessary, and that they should take that into consideration when creating the proposal. David agreed that the group needed to put together a formalized plan that includes the general idea for the project, what groups are involved and possible funding sources. He thought that the group should come up with something before the next FACAB meeting, so they have a document to review and edit as needed. They also need to talk to their own institutions about this project idea and develop a strategy.

After the group puts together a proposal, they agreed that they would need to meet with the Library staff again to make sure that everyone is on the same page, and the plan seems feasible to everyone involved.

3. FFA Award Update:

Rafael asked for any updates on the FFA award. Ariel told the group that she had not received any submissions yet. The group thought that they might need to find alternative ways to get the word out; not only about the award itself, but about FACAB. Timberley thought that people just don't know who FACAB is and what they are there for. She thought that maybe they could table, or find other ways to raise awareness about the group and the award.
