Provost Nairn has actually published and done a study on Scholarship of Teaching and Learning. As far as the P & T process, this can be part of education for some people, if it becomes publication. For the APS, Multiple Methods of Teaching Evaluation, the Deans have been reminded. The VCAC has been asked by Provost Nairn to review this during dossier reviews. There are a range of items in the APS that would qualify for the multiple methods of teaching evaluation. Provost Nairn likes to see more peer evaluation but that can be difficult in the smaller schools and colleges.

  o Chief Financial Officer / Sr. Vice Chancellor for Administration & Finance: Provost Nairn will be chairing this search. - Grad School Dean: The preferred candidate will be back for more interviews. Please look for future announcements.

- CU Online initiative: There has been continued discussion at the system level regarding online. There are several groups that are meeting; a Provost group, a CFO group, an IT group, and a marketing group to look at how we might move forward system wide. It was discussed to have a “CU On-Demand” that would be an umbrella and house a website that would list all current available online classes. The Provosts have been asked to review the registration process and help streamline for students. Other discussion has included governance structure, faculty participation, faculty guidance and ongoing resources, and support from CU Online on hybrid courses.

- CU Online Symposium (CLAS Only): Friday, April 10, 2015, North Classroom from 10:00 am-4:30pm.

1:55 PM  New Business / Old Business

New Business:
- Whereas the Administration's announced changes to the CU retirement plans has not been approved by the Denver Faculty Assembly,
- Whereas the Administration's announced changes have not been approved by any faculty governance unit,
- Whereas the Administration's announced changes were not developed in concert with any elected faculty governance unit,

Therefore, be it resolved that the Denver Faculty Assembly recommends to the Board of Regents that the Administration's announced changes to the CU retirement plans shall be delayed until the following conditions are resolved:

1. That the scope and duration of any and all 'hidden fees' associated with each CU retirement plan shall be fully disclosed.
2. That opportunities for diversification of retirement plan vendors shall be continued.
3. That the CU Administration and TIAA/CREF shall guarantee to provide full restitution for any and all expenses and market value declines associated with any employee's transfer of funds during the transition to a new retirement plan.
4. That any and all inducements provided by CU and/or TIAA/CREF or any other retirement plan vendor shall be fully disclosed.

• Amended / Past Motion(s):

Please substitute this motion on the May agenda:
Whereas the Administration's announced changes to the CU retirement plans has not been approved by the Denver Faculty Assembly,

Whereas the Administration's announced changes have not been approved by any faculty governance unit,

Whereas the Administration's announced changes were not developed in concert with any elected faculty governance unit,

Whereas there is no logical or coherent reason why retirees should have their retirement portfolios disrupted and reassigned, unless by individual choice,

Therefore, be it resolved that the Denver Faculty Assembly recommends to the Board of Regents that the Administration's announced changes to the CU retirement plans shall be modified to permit:

1. Each individual employee (and retiree) to choose whether to transfer existing retirement accounts to TIAA-CREF.
2. At least one of the existing deselected vendors (Vanguard or Fidelity) shall be retained to share in the record-keeping duties; employees will select their preferred record-keeper.

In the event that the above two changes cannot be implemented on a timely basis, through appropriate negotiations and contract modifications, then the announced implementation of changes in the retirement plans shall be delayed indefinitely until the following concerns are thoroughly considered by campus faculty assemblies, by Faculty and Staff Councils, and by the RFA:

1. That the scope and duration of any and all 'hidden fees' associated with each CU retirement plan shall be fully disclosed.
2. That opportunities for diversification of retirement plan vendors shall be continued.
3. That the CU Administration and TIAA / CREF shall guarantee to provide full restitution for any and all expenses and market value losses associated with any employee's transfer of funds during the transition to a new retirement plan.
4. That any and all inducements provided to CU by TIAA / CREF or any other retirement plan vendor shall be fully disclosed and that any hidden commissions, profit-sharing, or similar ongoing fiscal relationships shall be fully disclosed.

Thank you for your consideration.

Campus focuses include:
• The new Inter-disciplinary Building
• 30 acres of FRA land is likely to be acquired in the area north of Montview and East of Peoria up to the biosciences buildings

P & T Committee: Most preliminary letters are complete with the remaining letters to be sent out soon.

Chief Financial Officer Search: A search firm will be used for this position. The hope is to have airport interviews by mid-June and a start date of September 1st. The focus would be for the AMC. Currently Lisa Douglas is serving as the CU Denver CFO. Leadership will try to keep the faculty informed over the summer break.

Grad School Dean: The preferred candidate will be announced soon.

Title IX Coordinator: There are currently 4 finalists with 1 person that visited campus. Input received from faculty determined a different expertise needed for this role. The interim coordinator at this time will be Nelia Viveiros. Leadership is also looking to hire a Deputy Title IX Coordinator with a more centric student focus. J. Anthony Antuna will remain the investigator at this time. Federal compliance has asked that a comprehensive climate survey on sexual assault be done soon. (Fall 2015)

The program touches over 15,000 students from middle school to high school.

Campus Village Apartments: The Campus Village Apartments are not owned by CU. A lawsuit was recently brought against the CU Real Estate Foundation regarding freshman residency which CUREF is appealing. CU has lifted the freshman residency requirements in lieu of this lawsuit at this time and won’t be giving preference to Campus Village over the other 2 student residencies that offer housing near campus.

CU Denver Wellness Center: The CU Denver Student Government Association worked to get a proposed health and wellness center on the CU Denver Campus. The student’s fees will raise $12/credit hour. Center for Faculty Development Director Search: There are 4 candidates that will be coming for campus interviews in the next week. Updates to follow.

• CU Denver Faculty Assembly Bylaws: A copy of the bylaws was sent out electronically. Please try to review them so they can be voted on soon. Some of the major changes include; the University name change to CU Denver, name change for the Women’s Issues Committee to the Committee on the Status of Women, eliminated the Diversity Committee and made each of the prior sub-committees standing committees, with new descriptions and operating procedures that were approved by the committees last year, also that faculty assembly leadership can’t hold a position as an office or administrative position higher than department chair. Items to think about would be adding a limit on the number of terms for the faculty assembly leadership or members.

1:30 PM  President Benson - Office of the President

President Benson spoke to the assembly about the CU Denver campus, CU system, and the future of higher education. Key topics included; the recent Chancellor Search, philanthropy at CU, the new CU marketing campaign, and future facility / building improvements. We thank President Benson for having time available and attending the meeting.

CU Denver had a 22% response rate. If you are interested in seeing the full results, please contact John Sunnygard. The office is sponsoring an event, Everywhere is Rome: Intercultural Adaptation at Multicultural Universities, with Milton J. Bennett, Ph.D. as the guest speaker. It will be held on Friday, November 13th from 9:30 – 11:00 am in the Business School, Room 1800. Administrative Prioritization

Neil Krauss and Nicole Mcwhirter updated the assembly on the background and current status of the administrative prioritization that was requested by the Board of Regents. The review has been ongoing for the last 5 months. The academic program review was completed about a year ago. Handouts of the presentation were provided and can be found on the faculty assembly website under meeting materials. The committee began meeting in June and is comprised of faculty, fiscal managers, undergraduate and graduate students, associate and/or assistant vice chancellors.
The goals and objectives are:
- To improve processes, identify redundancies, and determine the relative quality of programs, all in a constructive environment

Chairs Report

Approval of October 2015 Minutes:
Motion to approve: Farah Ibrahim
2nd the motion: Tammy Stone, the assembly unanimously approved.

Title IX Ally Training: Karin Rees will be sending out a doodle poll again for people interested in attending a Title IX Ally Training on Friday, December 4th. Please only reply if you can attend and provide your preferred shirt size. If you have any questions, please contact Karin Rees.

The Student Government Association will be working to have a candidate forum on campus for the District 1 Regent Candidates in the spring. Regent Carrigan has volunteered to be the moderator.

Marketing has been working on a new campaign to focus on all campuses. Flyers of the campaign were passed around.

There will be a North Classroom Learning Experience meeting on Friday, November 6th, from 9:30am – 12:00pm in the North Classroom Atrium.

The new Chief Financial Officer has been announced; Dr. Terri Carrothers. BPC will reach out and try to meet with her soon. She is working with Jeff Parker until his retirement. She is currently 80% with the CU Anschutz and 20% with CU Denver. Lisa Douglas will be assisting with the CU Denver campus. We will be inviting Dr. Carrothers to a faculty assembly meeting soon.

The Auraria Library website is now up and running. Russ Poole has been invited to the next assembly meeting to discuss OIT concerns and goals.

Chancellor Wartgow and Chancellor Horrell will be attending the next faculty assembly meeting for a quick meet and greet. Chancellor Horrell will be invited back in the spring for the assembly to hear about her visions for the campus.
CU Denver Faculty Assembly Bylaws: The bylaws were reviewed at the October 6\textsuperscript{th} meeting to discuss revisions. Changes were to be sent to Joanne Addison for updates. The latest version of the bylaws was sent out to the assembly and the assembly committees for review prior to this meeting. Some of the major changes included; updating UCD to CU Denver, the preamble, committee names changing, removing the Diversity Committee and making the sub-committees formal standing committee. There are 2 options with the current bylaws. The current version has been through legal, and the executive committee, or this can continue to be reviewed with the other few minor edits, i.e. changing MAC to EDC, and the wording on the number of terms an officer may hold.

There was a motion to move and approve the bylaws as presently constituted by Rod Muth and was seconded by Farah Ibrahim. The assembly voted with 1 abstained vote. Please contact Joanne Addison if you would like to make suggestions or changes and discuss the approval process, please contact her at Joanne.Addison@ucdenver.edu.

The Constitution will still need to be reviewed. These changes will require the vote of the full faculty, which is currently very detailed. CU Boulder faculty assembly currently doesn’t have a constitution and the UCCS assembly constitution is more a statement of basic principles which could be a model.

1:22 PM

CU Denver Faculty Assembly Committee & Campus Reports:

- Auraria Library: The library is continuing with the renovation. There is a new popular fun reading section that is being built up.

- Academic Personnel Committee: APC has been working on the faculty mediator position with administration. They would like to see this person be able to meet and build a relationship with the APC as part of their formal job description. They are also working on a policy on anti-bullying. A copy will be sent to Michel Dahlin for her suggestions.

  APC has also been working on a template for campus faculty grievance procedures and resources. There are some schools and colleges that currently don’t have operating procedures for grievances which would normally be addressed at the department or school level.

  Omar Swartz will be invited back to discuss recent discussion in the P & T Committee.

- Budget Priorities Committee: BPC received an update from Provost Nairn on the North Classroom renovation project and the Student Commons Building. They were also updated that there will be a Chancellors Governance Committee for Online created.

  BPC requested an update on nWorks.

  BPC will begin scheduling time to meet and work with the new CFO.

- Committee on the Status of Women: No report at this time.

- Disabilities Committee: No report at this time.

- Educational Policy and Planning Committee: The next meeting will be on the 12\textsuperscript{th} and are working to get new members up to speed. They are awaiting to see what the assembly would like them to focus on. EPPC could be an avenue for other committees that are working on policies to review and work with Michel Dahlin.

  Regents Law & Policy Committee: The Committee has been reviewing all Regent policies and working with campus committees to make sure they align across campuses.

- Ethnic Diversity Committee (formerly Minority Affairs Committee): The committee has been working with EMAC on a survey which is a follow up to the FCQ project and looking at climate and atmosphere for diverse faculty. Discussion also included that some non-dominate faculty end up teaching socially sensitive subjects and what support there is for them.

- Faculty Advisory Committee to the Auraria Board: No report at this time.
- Gay, Lesbian, Bi-sexual, Transgender, & Intersex Committee: The GLBTI Committee will be having the Symposium at UCCS. The registration is currently closed, but if you are interested in attending, please email David Bondelevitch or Troyann Gentile. Last month there was a Safe Zone training session. The goal is to have 2 session a year on both campuses.
- Learning, Educational Technology, Teaching & Scholarship Committee: The committee is going through a list of prioritized projects for the semester. OIT will be sending a representative to the LETTS meetings and he will attend ad-hoc.
- Retired Faculty: Rod Muth has been asked to begin a retired faculty association for the CU Denver Campus. He just received results for an online survey with positive response and is awaiting results of the mailed survey. The hope is to begin meeting in the spring. A question was asked on if faculty keep their ucdenver.edu email address. If you are an emeritus professor you keep your email address or if you reached out and expressed interest to keep it. A first act of business could be to create a policy for retired faculty to keep their email addresses for future correspondence.
- Student Government Association: SGA has been working on the advising survey. They are also working on a tragedy response. This would be to have CU Denver recognize mass tragedies and how it impacts students. SGA would like to also build student awareness on faculty assembly and work together on university goals. Johnnie Nguyen will be the point person for the congressional debate in the spring. Everyone is welcome to attend the SGA meetings; every Friday at 12-2pm in Tivoli 327.
- University of CO Denver Association of Lecturers and Instructors (UCDALI): The UCDALI fall event was low in attendance, but had a good discussion on mentoring for NTTF. UCDALI met with Dean Jansma to discuss multi-year contracts for NTTF which opened up to a later larger meeting with all NTTF in CLAS being invited. UCDALI has been accepting applications for Non-CLAS grant and have made their selections. They will be announcing the awardees of 6 - $500 Professional Development Grants soon. The CLAS grant opportunities will be announced in early spring.

1:49 PM Old Business / New Business / Announcements:

There was a recent survey that was sent out from OIT on content management systems. This would be important for those who controls or updates the website. Please fill out this survey at your convenience.

There has been word that there will be a survey coming out from the Federal Government on Title IX, to be registered to all campuses and completed each year. The students at CU Anschutz did their own survey. Their results were not much different than national results with emphasis on pregnancy concerns. If you can weigh in at any level, please do be involved.

OIT Update

Russ Poole sent out a report after the last meeting regarding recent IT concerns. Major items included; updating the infrastructure, number of outages, authentication issues, and the data center. OIT will continue to work on all issues as they arise. Some of the items won’t be completed until renovations are done, or coordination between the 3 institutions is arranged. Please continue to contact OIT with all your concerns. There has been discussion on upgrading to a new Contact Management System. There will be a number of upcoming vendor presentations and everyone, both faculty and staff, is invited to attend and provide feedback. OIT is looking for feedback from both novice and experts and would be beneficial to hear from the people who maintain websites. An email will be sent from OIT on the dates and times of the meetings. Karin Rees will attend these meetings and provide feedback. If you would like another copy of the report from Russ, please contact Karin Rees at Karin.Rees@ucdenver.edu.

Joanne Addison was interested in Starfish, a new student advising system. An email came out from OIT, who is implementing the system. Raul Cardenas and Jeff Franklin had been working with OIT to provide a student success technology system. Joanne Addison asked if faculty can be more involved in this process, as they are heavily associated with advising and student retention. In the second tier of advising for majors, it becomes difficult to follow up with missing students. Russ will work with Raul to get the word out to faculty on this technology.

1:18 PM
Jordan Fernandes, Student Government

Food Pantry

Jordan Fernandes, the food pantry coordinator from the Office of Student Life, provided a presentation on the needs and how to donate to the CU Denver Food Pantry. This service provides students in need with food and hygiene products. Each student is able to get 8 points of food items and 3 points for hygiene products each week. A valid student ID is required. The food pantry is a donation based service. Last fiscal year 145 students were served. The food pantry is currently located in the Tivoli Room 127 and open from Monday-Friday, 8:30am-4:30pm. For more information on how to contact or opportunities to donate, please review their website at; http://www.ucdenver.edu/life/services/studentlife/CommunityEngagement/GetHelp/Pages/Food-Pantry.aspx.

1:35 PM
Remaining CU Denver Faculty Assembly Committee & Campus Reports:
- Committee on the Status of Women (Diane Turner): The CSW is working to provide information on the lactation stations on campus. The hope is to have a map of all the stations on campus by fall. The CU Women’s Succeeding Symposium, Stages of a Career, will be held on February 25 and 26th in Colorado Springs. Please register soon, as space is limited.

- Disabilities Committee (Amy Vidali): The DisC has been working with the ADA Coordinator on current faculty accommodations and how to access. If faculty can continue to go to their Dean or Chair but also have the ADA Coordinator available as a resource. A handout was created on where to find everything, processes, and resources. The Universal Syllabi that was approved this fall, is currently on hold and they will begin talking with faculty in spring. The DisC is also working to have a resource page built under the Office of Diversity and Inclusion. Multiple Means of Evaluation? Identifying Best Practices with FCQ

The University of Colorado Denver (CU Denver), Faculty Assembly Minority Affairs Committee (MAC) is charged with making recommendations on hiring, support, and retention of diverse faculty at the university. To facilitate diverse faculty, the MAC committee focused on identifying faculty assumptions and ideas about multiple means of evaluation and best practices with FCQ’s in 2014-15. The MAC Event on Multiple Means of Evaluation? Identifying Best Practices with FCQ’s (Faculty and Course Questionnaire) was held on April 3, 2015. This workshop was a follow-up on last year’s MAC event, Reconsidering FCQs (http://tinyurl.com/ReconsiderFCQ), which involved quantitative analysis of FCQ data for CU Denver faculty. The results based on 18,205 courses, with a minimum of 10 students, showed that culturally diverse faculty FCQ’s were approximately 0.15-0.25 points lower on a six-point scale.

These results are consistent with research on teaching evaluations of faculty who are members of non-dominant and diverse cultural groups (Andersen & Smith, 2007; Gilroy, 2007; Reid, 2010; Smith, 2007; Smith & Hawkins, 2011). The MAC report on Reconsidering FCQs (2013-14) included recommendations to address the situation, however, it is unclear to date, if any of these recommendations have been adopted. This year, MAC members wanted to follow-up on the recommendations made by faculty and administrators at last year’s workshop to review best practices with FCQs. The workshop was designed to get input from faculty at CU Denver, to assess and incorporate their perspective on appropriate means of evaluation for teaching, and what they think are best practices in administering FCQs, and using the data derived from this evaluation.

Event Location and Participants

The event was held at the Lawrence Street Center, Room 1150, and attended by 19 individuals who had preregistered for the event, and three additional participants, who came to the event, but had not preregistered; the total number of attendees was 22. Faculty, and staff, and some students from CU Denver attended the event, they represented the following academic units: Anthropology, Computer Science, Engineering and Applied Sciences, Psychology, Mathematics, School of Business, School of Education and Human Development, School of Public Affairs, Institutional Research, Office of Undergraduate Experience, and Student Government. The following members of the MAC assisted with facilitation discussion in small groups: Faye Caronan Chen, Ji Chen, Vera Gao, Farah Ibrahim, Denise Pan, and Carlos Reali.

Workshop Focus

All preregistered participants received sample questions to explore the issue of best practices in teaching evaluations: These included:

(a) Administering FCQs in the classroom

(a.1) How can we improve response rates (face-to-face and online courses)?

(a.2) How do you encourage students to provide constructive and positive feedback?

(a.3) Other concerns, questions?

(b) Describing FCQ scores in self-evaluations
(b.1) What aspects of FCQ report do you highlight in your self-evaluation?
(b.2) What information do you provide about the course and students?
(b.3) Other ideas?

(c) Interpreting and analyzing FCQ scores for evaluating others
(c.1) What do you think are important factors that should be considered?
(c.2) Is there additional training and mentoring available for evaluators at CU Denver?
(c.3) Other suggestions?

They were also sent the following links to facilitate review of best practices nationally:

Results

The discussion of the three main questions generated meaningful results, although, all responses to all three questions seemed to blend together to a certain extent, although, they address different aspects of administration, self-report by faculty, and evaluation by others. Majority of the faculty attending the workshop were junior faculty hoping to achieve tenure at CU Denver, or graduate students who were teaching undergraduates and hoping to move into an academic career. The results are presented in Tables I, II, and III. The first question generated the greatest amount of input from the attendees. Several useful recommendations were provided for all three questions.

Discussion

The issues identified and recommendations made by the participants provide several guidelines for mentoring junior faculty for achieving tenure as it relates to effectiveness of teaching. Teaching activities include several important variables that define the career path of an academic. It is critical that faculty and evaluators consider teaching activities in a holistic manner, and consider the depth and breadth of the teaching portfolio (Marsh & Roche, 1997; University of Colorado, http://www.cu.edu/ope/aps/1009; University of Michigan http://www.crlt.umich.edu/tstrategies/guidelines). Further assigning weights to aspects of teaching activities as reflected in institutional policy (http://www.cu.edu/ope/aps/1009) would reduce confusion about aspects of teaching that are valued and rewarded. Marsh and Roche (1997) cite several researchers who have noted that teaching is a complex and multidimensional activity, teaching evaluation instruments need to be designed reflect all aspects of the complexity that teaching represents.

The University of Colorado policy on multiple means of evaluation of teaching provides the following criteria in Appendix A: A representative, but not exhaustive list of suggestions for components to be used in the evaluation of teaching*:

- Course syllabi and examinations
- Student evaluations as reported on Faculty Course Questionnaires (FCQ's) or a similar, campus-approved system and forms
- Grade distributions
- Instructional materials
- Scholarly research and publication on teaching
- Self-evaluation or report
- Student examination performance
- Student mid-term evaluations
- Evidence of risk taking to enhance learning
- Curriculum development that enhances learning
- Willingness to take training in teaching effectiveness and new technology
- Evidence of engagement in the online environment
- Alumni opinions within 2-5 years of graduation
- Peer assessments
- Professional awards related to the education process
- Grants in support of teaching and learning
- Student focus groups

Administer FCQs in the Classroom

The recommendations provided by the participants in the workshop resonated with several best practices, specifically, grade distributions, self-evaluation, student GPA in the course, peer assessments, curriculum development to enhance learning, training on teaching effectiveness, online engagement, evidence of risk taking and using innovative strategies (Table I, II, and III). Regarding University of Colorado guidelines on focus groups and follow-up with alumni, we recommend schools and colleges should conduct student focus groups, and follow-up with graduates to get an evaluation 3-5 years post-graduation, to reduce implications of bias. These recommendations and CU Denver guidelines resonate with best practices for teaching evaluation in the research literature (Iowa State University http://www.celt.iastate.edu/teaching-resources/document-your-teaching/student-
Describe FCQ Scores in Self-Evaluations

Several of the recommendations by participants on presenting FCQ information for evaluation are useful, and identified as best practices, e.g., presenting improvements in graphs, such as educating students on how the feedback would be used in improving the course and instructor effectiveness, developing course-specific evaluations, model constructive feedback strategies, creating learning communities, using innovative strategies for teaching, doing mid-term evaluations, and using data from both mid-term and final FCQ's administered by the university. However, what was missing from the discussion was the faculty members' satisfaction with the university, issues such stress of the tenure process, lack of collegiality or mentoring, university environment, internal and external stressors, which are addressed in the research literature (Ambrose, Huston, & Norman, 2005; Boyer, Altbach, & Whitlaw, 1994; Matier, 1990). To enhance teaching ability of junior faculty of color, and to reduce excessive stress, especially pertaining to evaluation and success at an academic institution, it is important to provide positive and strength-based mentoring, and support for teaching, and research activities, educate new and junior faculty about all the resources available on campus, and encourage connecting with peer faculty at own and other institutions.

Interpreting and analyzing FCQ Scores for Evaluating Others
The primary anxiety and stress regarding FCQs’ is the issue of how the information will be used in annual review, Reappointment, Tenure, and Promotion (RTP) decisions, for junior faculty of color, and women (Gmelch, Lovrich, & Wilkie, 1986; O’Meara, 2002; Rice, Sorcinelli & Austin, 2000). This question came up several times during the workshop, and we would be remiss if we did not address it. The recommendations in Table III address how faculty would like this concern addressed, specifically, they noted that evaluators should understand statistical information, should possibly have training to evaluate peers, along with an emphasis on giving credit for innovative teaching methods, consider a faculty members overall contributions to teaching, such as new courses developed, grants to enhance teaching, scholarship of teaching, and creating learning communities to enhance student learning and satisfaction, and not focus on the mean score for course and instructor rating.

The pressure on faculty at a Research I University, such as CU Denver is to also publish or perish. O’Meara (2002) notes that Ernest Boyer’s (1990) suggestion that the definition of scholarship used in promotion policies be changed, to include teaching, discovering, integrating, and applying knowledge. Glassick, Huber, and Maeroff (1997) report that 62% of chief academic officers of four-year institutions used Boyer’s recommendations to consider faculty roles and rewards. Several advocates have recommended assessing teaching, and service as scholarship, essentially rewarding multiple forms of scholarship within academic reward systems (Driscoll & Lynton, 1999; Hutchings & Shulman, 1999; O’Meara). We believe that acknowledging faculty contributions to teaching and service as scholarship would make teaching central in an academic institution, and also result in greater attention to inclusive and positive teaching strategies, enhancing student learning, and satisfaction. MAC recommends that CU Denver administrators, department heads, and faculty consider implementing recommendations offered by faculty at the workshop, and the research literature to lower stress, and anxiety, among junior faculty, enhance satisfaction with the educational institution, and ensure that best practices are in use to promote faculty retention and promotion at CU Denver.

High-Impact Educational Practices

First-Year Seminars and Experiences
Many schools now build into the curriculum first-year seminars or other programs that bring small groups of students together with faculty or staff on a regular basis. The highest-quality first-year experiences place a strong emphasis on critical inquiry, frequent writing, information literacy, collaborative learning, and other skills that develop students’ intellectual and practical competencies. First-year seminars can also involve students with cutting-edge questions in scholarship and with faculty members’ own research.

Common Intellectual Experiences
The older idea of a “core” curriculum has evolved into a variety of modern forms, such as a set of required common courses or a vertically organized general education program that includes advanced integrative studies and/or required participation in a learning community (see below). These programs often combine broad themes—e.g., technology and society, global interdependence—with a variety of curricular and cocurricular options for students.

Learning Communities
The key goals for learning communities are to encourage integration of learning across courses and to involve students with “big questions” that matter beyond the classroom. Students take two or more linked courses as a group and work closely with one another and with their professors. Many learning communities explore a common topic and/or common readings through the lenses of different disciplines. Some deliberately link “liberal arts” and “professional courses”; others feature service learning.

Writing-Intensive Courses
These courses emphasize writing at all levels of instruction and across the curriculum, including first-year projects. Students are encouraged to produce and revise various forms of writing for different audiences in different disciplines. The effectiveness of this repeated practice “across the curriculum” has led to parallel efforts in such areas as quantitative reasoning, oral communication, information literacy, and, on some campuses, ethical inquiry.

Collaborative Assignments and Projects
Collaborative learning combines two key goals: learning to work and solve problems in the company of others, and sharpening one’s own understanding by listening seriously to the insights of others, especially those with different backgrounds and life experiences. Approaches range from study groups within a course, to team-based assignments and writing, to cooperative projects and research.

Undergraduate Research
Many colleges and universities are now providing research experiences for students in all disciplines. Undergraduate research, however, has been most prominently used in science disciplines. With strong support from the National Science Foundation and the research community, scientists are reshaping their courses to connect key concepts and questions with students’ early and active involvement in systematic investigation and research. The goal is to involve students with actively contested questions, empirical observation, cutting-edge technologies, and the sense of excitement that comes from working to answer important questions.

Diversity/Global Learning
Many colleges and universities now emphasize courses and programs that help students explore cultures, life experiences, and worldviews different from their own. These studies—which may address U.S. diversity, world cultures, or both—often explore “difficult differences” such as racial, ethnic, and gender inequality, or continuing struggles around the globe for human rights, freedom, and power. Frequently, intercultural studies are augmented by experiential learning in the community and/or by study abroad.

Service Learning, Community-Based Learning
In these programs, field-based “experiential learning” with community partners is an instructional strategy—and often a required part of the course. The idea is to give students direct experience with issues they are studying in the curriculum and with ongoing efforts to analyze and solve problems in the community. A key element in these programs is the opportunity students have to both apply what they are learning in real-world settings and reflect in a classroom setting on their service experiences. These programs model the idea that giving something back to the community is an important college outcome, and that working with community partners is good preparation for citizenship, work, and life.

Internships
Internships are another increasingly common form of experiential learning. The idea is to provide students with direct experience in a work setting—usually related to their career interests—and to give them the benefit of supervision and coaching from professionals in the field. If the internship is taken for course credit, students complete a project or paper that is approved by a faculty member.

Capstone Courses and Projects
Whether they’re called “senior capstones” or some other name, these culminating experiences require students nearing the end of their college years to create a project of some sort that integrates and applies what they’ve learned. The project might be a research paper, a performance, a portfolio of “best work,” or an exhibit of artwork. Capstones are offered both in departmental programs and, increasingly, in general education as well.

We've used these occasions to promote key elements of the research on HIPs (Kuh 2008; Brownell and Swaner 2010). First, despite their different settings, these practices share an emphasis on the social nature of learning, exploiting the student-faculty relationship, time on task, purposeful effort, and real-world contexts. And second, putting them to more systematic use will leverage their ability to raise persistence and graduation rates overall, while reducing prevailing achievement gaps.

That second point got a boost in the form of corroborating data from our Office of Institutional Research at CSU-Northridge. Director Bertina Huber used student record-level data to relate six-year graduation rates to students' participation in select HIPs, as reported on the National Survey of Student Engagement. Controlling for typical predictors like eligibility for financial aid, parents' educational attainment, and high school academic history, she found significant gains among students who reported participating in at least one high-impact practice, with a dramatic narrowing of the gap in graduation rates between Latino students (the largest minority group at CSU-Northridge) and others (see fig. 5 below).

The Results of a CSU Regression Analysis to Isolate the Effects of Participation in Multiple High-Impact Practices on Six-Year Graduation Rates

Students who reported participating in two HIPs—that is, those in the third column of each group—are graduating at a nearly two-thirds rate, and the gap is down to 3 percentage points. In other words, the goals of the Graduation Initiative are easily exceeded, without gaming the system. You can see the full report at calstate.edu/engage.

Multiple Means of Evaluation?
Identifying Best Practices with FCQs

Workshop and luncheon*
Friday April 3 at 12:00-1:00 pm
Lawrence Street Center 1150

Learn from your colleagues about best practices on how to...

- Administer FCQs in the classroom
- Describe FCQ scores in self-evaluations
- Interpret and analyze FCQ scores for evaluating others

Join the conversation with the
CU Denver Faculty Assembly Minority Affairs Committee (MAC)

Register for the workshop at http://tinyurl.com/MACevent2015

MAC is charged with making recommendations on the hiring, support, and retention of diverse faculty at CU Denver.
In Spring 2014 MAC hosted a workshop that identified FCQs as an area of concern in the evaluation, tenure, and promotion of underrepresented ethnic/racial faculty.

Everywhere is Rome: Intercultural Adaptation at Multicultural Universites
Milton J. Bennett, Ph.D.

Friday, November 13th, 9:30 – 11:00 am
Business School, Room 1800

Specially prepared for CU Denver Faculty teaching International Students
Sponsored by the Office of International Affairs

Two cultural challenges facing faculties at the University of Colorado Denver are:
1) The growing influx of international students; and
2) The ongoing diversity of its domestic student body
While both groups of students typically make large efforts to adapt to the university environment, there are still major cultural gaps between (and among) them and the various academic cultures represented by faculty. Traditional orientation and equity programs can only go so far in addressing these gaps; eventually they end up in classrooms and laboratories as either obstacles or potential assets to learning. This session will review how an intercultural “mutual adaptation” approach reduces communication obstacles in the classroom, and it will suggest how the same approach can maximize the potential for cultural differences to become assets to education in critical analysis and creative thinking.

About the speaker:
Dr. Milton J. Bennett founded and directs the Intercultural Development Research Institute located in Hillsboro, Oregon and Milano, Italy (http://www.idrinstitute.org). He is also an adjunct professor of intercultural communication at the University of Milano-Bicocca and a consultant on the topic to corporations, universities, and exchange organizations in Europe, Asia, and the US. Dr. Bennett studied physics and cognitive psychology as part of his BA degree from Stanford University, has an MA in psycholinguistics from San Francisco State University and holds one of the first Ph.D.’s in intercultural communication (University of Minnesota).

Proposal: Universal Syllabi Statement on Disability and Access
Faculty Assembly Disabilities Committee (DisC)
Co-Chairs: Amy Vidal (Amy Vidal) and Leo Bruecherle (Biology)
January 30, 2015

At present, CU Denver has several suggested or required syllabi statements on disability and access. Some of these are effective, but others conflict with the requirements of the Americans with Disabilities Act and/or Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act, and may foreclose conversations about best accommodation practices for particular courses. To encourage student success, comply with federal legislation, and meet our ethical obligations to serve all our students, the Faculty Assembly Disabilities Committee (DisC) created the following Universal Syllabi Statement on Disability, and is seeking feedback from Faculty Assembly and other groups on the statement and FAQs. The committee plans to conclude the feedback stage on February 25.

<td>The University of Colorado Denver is committed to ensuring the full participation of all students in its programs, including students with disabilities. If you have a disability or think you have a disability and need accommodations to succeed in this course, I encourage you to contact Disability Resources and Services (DRS) and/or speak with me as soon as you can. (DRS is located in Academic Building 1, Suite 2116, and at disabilityresources@ucdenver.edu.) I am committed to providing equal access as required by federal law, and I am interested in developing strategies for your success in this course.</td>

Frequently Asked Questions

Is the statement required? Can I adapt the statement?
In developing this statement, the committee sought to eliminate illegalities and inconsistencies across CU Denver’s various suggested and required policies, so this statement is required. If you choose to add additional comments, they should not conflict with existing information. Though many disabled students will choose to discuss their disabilities with faculty members, disabled students are not required to do so (and may disclose only to DRS). All accommodations sanctioned by DRS must be provided.

Where can I find information about making my classes accessible for disabled students?
The Disabilities Committee (DisC) has created a Disability Information for Faculty website focused on inclusive teaching and campus-specific disability resources. [The committee is in the process of updating and relocating this website, which will be complete prior to releasing the syllabi statement.]

Where can I get additional information about disability policies for students and faculty?
For policies regarding disabled students, contact Disability Resources for Students (see contact information in syllabi statement above). For information for disabled faculty (including how to secure accommodations), begin at the Disability Information for Faculty Information website, or go to the HR website and look under “HR Policies and Guidelines.”

What if students ask for accommodations in the middle or end of my course?
Ideally, discussing the syllabi statement in your class will encourage students to secure accommodations early in your course. It's also possible that students may be diagnosed with disabilities, or realize that they need accommodations, after class is already underway. If this occurs, take time to speak with the student. Faculty are required to provide accommodations when formally requested at any time during the course, but accommodations are not retroactive.

A student with a disability wants to talk to me, but does not have a DRS letter. What should I do? The first step is to listen to the student. Some students may choose to self-advocate, cannot afford required testing to gain DRS documentation, and/or have obvious disabilities with limited accommodation requests. The university does not require you to accommodate students without letters, but you may have discussions with the student and make informed pedagogical decisions, as you would with any student who approaches you with a concern or idea.

Contact the Disabilities Committee with ideas and questions. Visit the Faculty Assembly Disabilities Committee website, or email co-Chairs Amy Vidali (amy.vidali@ucdenver.edu) and Leo Brueuderle (leo.brueuderle@ucdenver.edu).
CU Denver Minority Affairs Committee Event Announcement:

Hello,

The next CU Denver Faculty Assembly Minority Affairs Committee (MAC) event will be a follow-up to our Spring 2014 FCQs workshop, see executive summary. This upcoming workshop will focus on “Recommendations for Best Practices for Evaluating Faculty and Courses.” Since one of the UCD criteria is “multiple means of evaluation for faculty and courses,” participants will be asked to select various modes of evaluation that they are interested in discussing to identify best practices. A facilitator/note taker will be assigned to each group to record the comments, recommendations, and concerns that emerge in each group. After the workshop component is done, we will reconvene as a large group, and have each table share the key points of their discussion. We hope to take the findings from this workshop to guide our group in proposing and effectively disseminating the information to address faculty concerns about FCQs, and recommendations for best practice at CU Denver. Proposed dates for the 2015 workshop are April 2 or 3, please indicate your availability via Doodle Poll. Thank you.

Kind regards,
Denise, MAC Co-Chair
